

The best psychological medicine: Role of toxins and fillers in mature patients

Katie King-Ting Lau

Allergan Medical Institute

Toxins and fillers are reputable for "beautifying lives" – anything more? Their basic pharmaceutical properties yield functional improvements, which is a medical necessity in the degenerative population. Complementing on the effects from chronic medications, gives much light on their psychosocial aspect as well, not merely aesthetic as in the younger generation.