

Talk #2 : Advances in parallel-beam ultrasound for non-invasive improvement in skin laxity and brow elevation

In this session, we will discuss the use of parallel beam ultrasound for the improvement of skin laxity in different regions of the face and neck. Emphasis will be placed on a review of clinical trials using this technology, as well as practical application from 3 years of clinical experience. We will discuss techniques for maximizing results and patient satisfaction